USDA Eyes Need For More Flue-Cured Tobacco, As Exports Climb

More flue-cured tobacco production may be needed than estimated earlier, due to growing foreign demand, according to Mahlon K. Rudy, State Executive Director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Rudy says the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed consideration of increasing or terminating limitations on production for the 1974-75 flue-cured tobacco marketing year, based on a material increase in export demand. Notice of proposed rules changes, based on new export information, were published in the Federal Register December 26.

Rudy said the USDA had announced on July 3 a national marketing quota of 1,179 million pounds for flue-cured tobacco for the marketing year beginning July 1, 1974. The quota was based on an estimated domestic utilization of 690 million pounds and exports of 455 million pounds, with an upward adjustment of 34 million pounds for the purpose of maintaining an adequate supply.

Rudy adds that, since the announcement was made, a 6 percent increase in flue-cured tobacco exports over estimated use was registered for the past marketing year. And, exports continued strong during the first four months recorded for the current marketing year, at a level 10 percent above the corresponding months of last year. Rudy says reports from trade sources indicate that cigarette production in foreign countries is increasing by about 4 percent annually. At the same time, the available world supply of high quality flue-cured tobacco has become relatively tight.

"THE BEGINNING OF SORROWS"

Two thousand years ago the disciples of Christ asked of their Lord; "When shall Jerusalem be destroyed; What shall be the sign of thy return to earth, and when shall be the end of the age?" These three questions were prompted by the Lord's declaration that He would return to heaven from whence He came, but at a future time He would return to earth to establish His Kingdom and to put all enemies under His feet.

In answering the question of the disciples, Christ listed numerous signs that would point to the soon return. After emphasizing eight of these signs, Christ said: "All these are the beginning of sorrows." Matt. 24:8.

The eight signs consisted of war clouds, false christs, national wars, kingdom wars, famines, pestilences, and earthquakes. The Lord said these would usher in a time called "the beginning of sorrows." I believe we are witnessing those days now.

There is in the world at the present time a famine of power. We have palatial homes but not enough fuel to heat them; luxurious cars but too little gas to empower them; and a lot of peach treaties but very little peace. If the fuel crisis continues there will be a major shortage of almost every item we deem essential. With these shortages will come many heartaches and sorrows.

War clouds have permitted little sunshine of peace in my lifetime. Present military and commercial juggling for advantageous positions of bargaining could well touch off World War III. A global war, certainly there will result great sorrows.

Pestilences are to be found in abundance in spite of our powerful insecticides.

Nations are rising against nation in ever increasing regularity. Kingdoms are rising and falling. Chile and Greece are two very recent examples.

And what of the false ministers riding the crest of popularity. Everything from fake healers to devil worshipers.

Let's pretend a moment. Suppose you were the God of Righteousness, evil being your deadliest enemy. As you look out over America could you find enough righteousness to spare a nation? Could you find enough genuine, sincere laws of righteousness to save America? Could you overlook evil. It was so in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah when the Lord was unable to find ten righteous people, so He destroyed the twin cities.

The Lord has not changed is standard. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." Our individual and national sorrows will increase unless we return to God. Don't be numbered with those who have fallen away. Join the Lord's people, not His enemies.
